Key Insights from the Dashboard

- Neutral sentiment dominates video titles, accounting for the majority of trending videos. This indicates that most creators use descriptive titles rather than emotionally expressive language.
- A few categories generate significantly higher total views, suggesting that certain content genres consistently attract more audience attention on YouTube.
- There is a strong positive relationship between views and likes, meaning that videos with higher view counts generally receive more likes and engagement from viewers.
- Trending videos appear more frequently on specific weekdays, indicating that publishing time and day may influence the chances of a video trending.
- Trending duration varies across videos, showing that some videos stay popular longer while others quickly lose engagement.
- Positive sentiment titles tend to attract slightly higher engagement, suggesting that emotionally appealing titles may help improve viewer interaction.
